MEET SIOBHANN BROWN & EWAN McDONALD

Siobhann was born in Seymour, northern Victoria. She is the proud daughter of a Vietnam veteran and was raised in a military family with a firm focus on Western values and Australian traditions.

Siobhann has worked first as a project officer in disability services and now in the security industry.

The horrific murder of her first-born daughter Ashlee Brown in 2016 has cast Siobhann into the role of an accidental political activist. She is now passionate about combatting the Islamisation of our society and volunteers her time to inform girls and women about the risks of intercultural marriages.

Siobhann is engaged to be married. Protecting her community from crime, drugs, big government, divisive multiculturalism, overpopulation and oppressive political correctness are also high on her agenda.

As your elected representative, Siobhann is determined to help families who struggle with increasing cost of living. Unsympathetic public services and state government agencies, which routinely neglect regional Victoria and the most vulnerable in her community, are firmly in Siobhann's sights.

Ewan is a 4th generation farmer from Northern Victoria near Rochester. He comes from a family with a proud tradition of serving its community.

Married with six children, Ewan is concerned they are growing up in a far more hostile environment than the one previous generations enjoyed. Big government, high taxes, growing public debt, over-regulation, increasing cost of living, political correctness, and the growth of anti-freedom ideologies like Islam, are impacting on our Australian way of life.

Ewan has a wide breadth of knowledge on the issues affecting rural and regional communities. He is concerned with the way extreme green ideology is influencing irrigation water policy and energy policy. Unfounded alarmist claims regarding environmental degradation are driving water policy to the detriment of irrigators.

Alarmist and irrational concerns regarding climate change are by far the largest factor in Victoria having some of the most expensive electricity in the world.

The impact on freedom of speech from political correctness and government appeasement to noisy minority groups is of great concern to Ewan. He is convinced that ALA is the only party contesting this state election with a priority to regain and preserve freedom of speech for all Victorians.
